Why use a lubricant with hyaluron?

Hyaluron is a substance produced naturally in the body and belongs to one of the most important structural elements in our skin. It gives tissues and organs their shape, gives elasticity and at the same time serves as a water reservoir.

Hyaluron ensures that water and nutrients reach the tissue. Since it can absorb up to 6000 times of its own volume of water, it is of great importance for the moisture regulation of the tissue. The application of hyaluron keeps the skin stable and elastic, also and especially the vaginal connective tissue.

In addition, hyaluron actively supports the wound healing process of the skin. Unpleasant burning and itching are relieved and infections also occur less frequently. Allergies in connection with hyaluron are not known so far.
